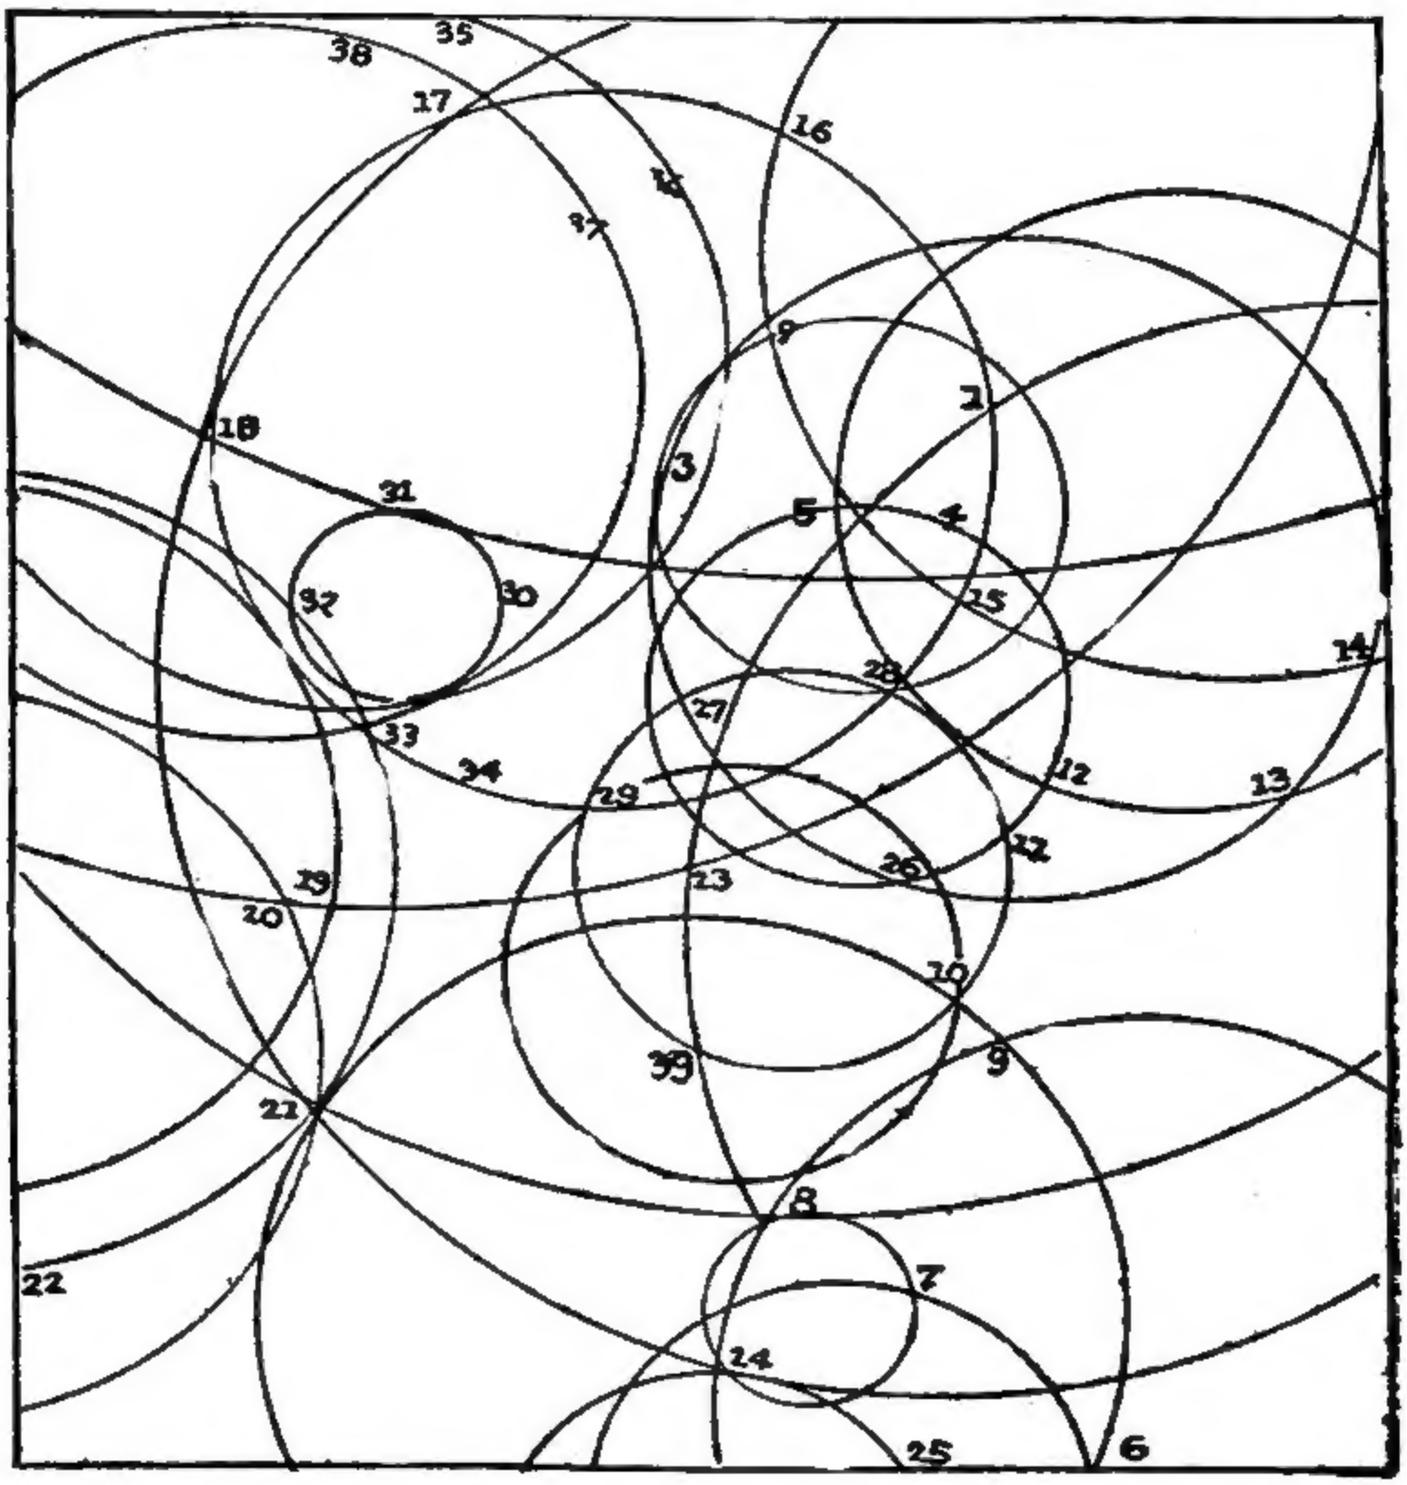
Reichhold's Radiotoon On Radio for Children



HERE it is, "Kiddies," and the thing for you to do is to cut the Radiotoon out of THE PRESS right now, and save it till tomorrow evening when Uncle Kay-Bee comes on the air for the bedtime story period over Station WCAE.

Now in these funny lines pictured above there is an equally funny picture, and of course there is a trick to finding out just what the picture is. So that is why you are to save it, and when you and Uncle Kay-Bee get together tomorrow at the radio, you will find out just what it is.

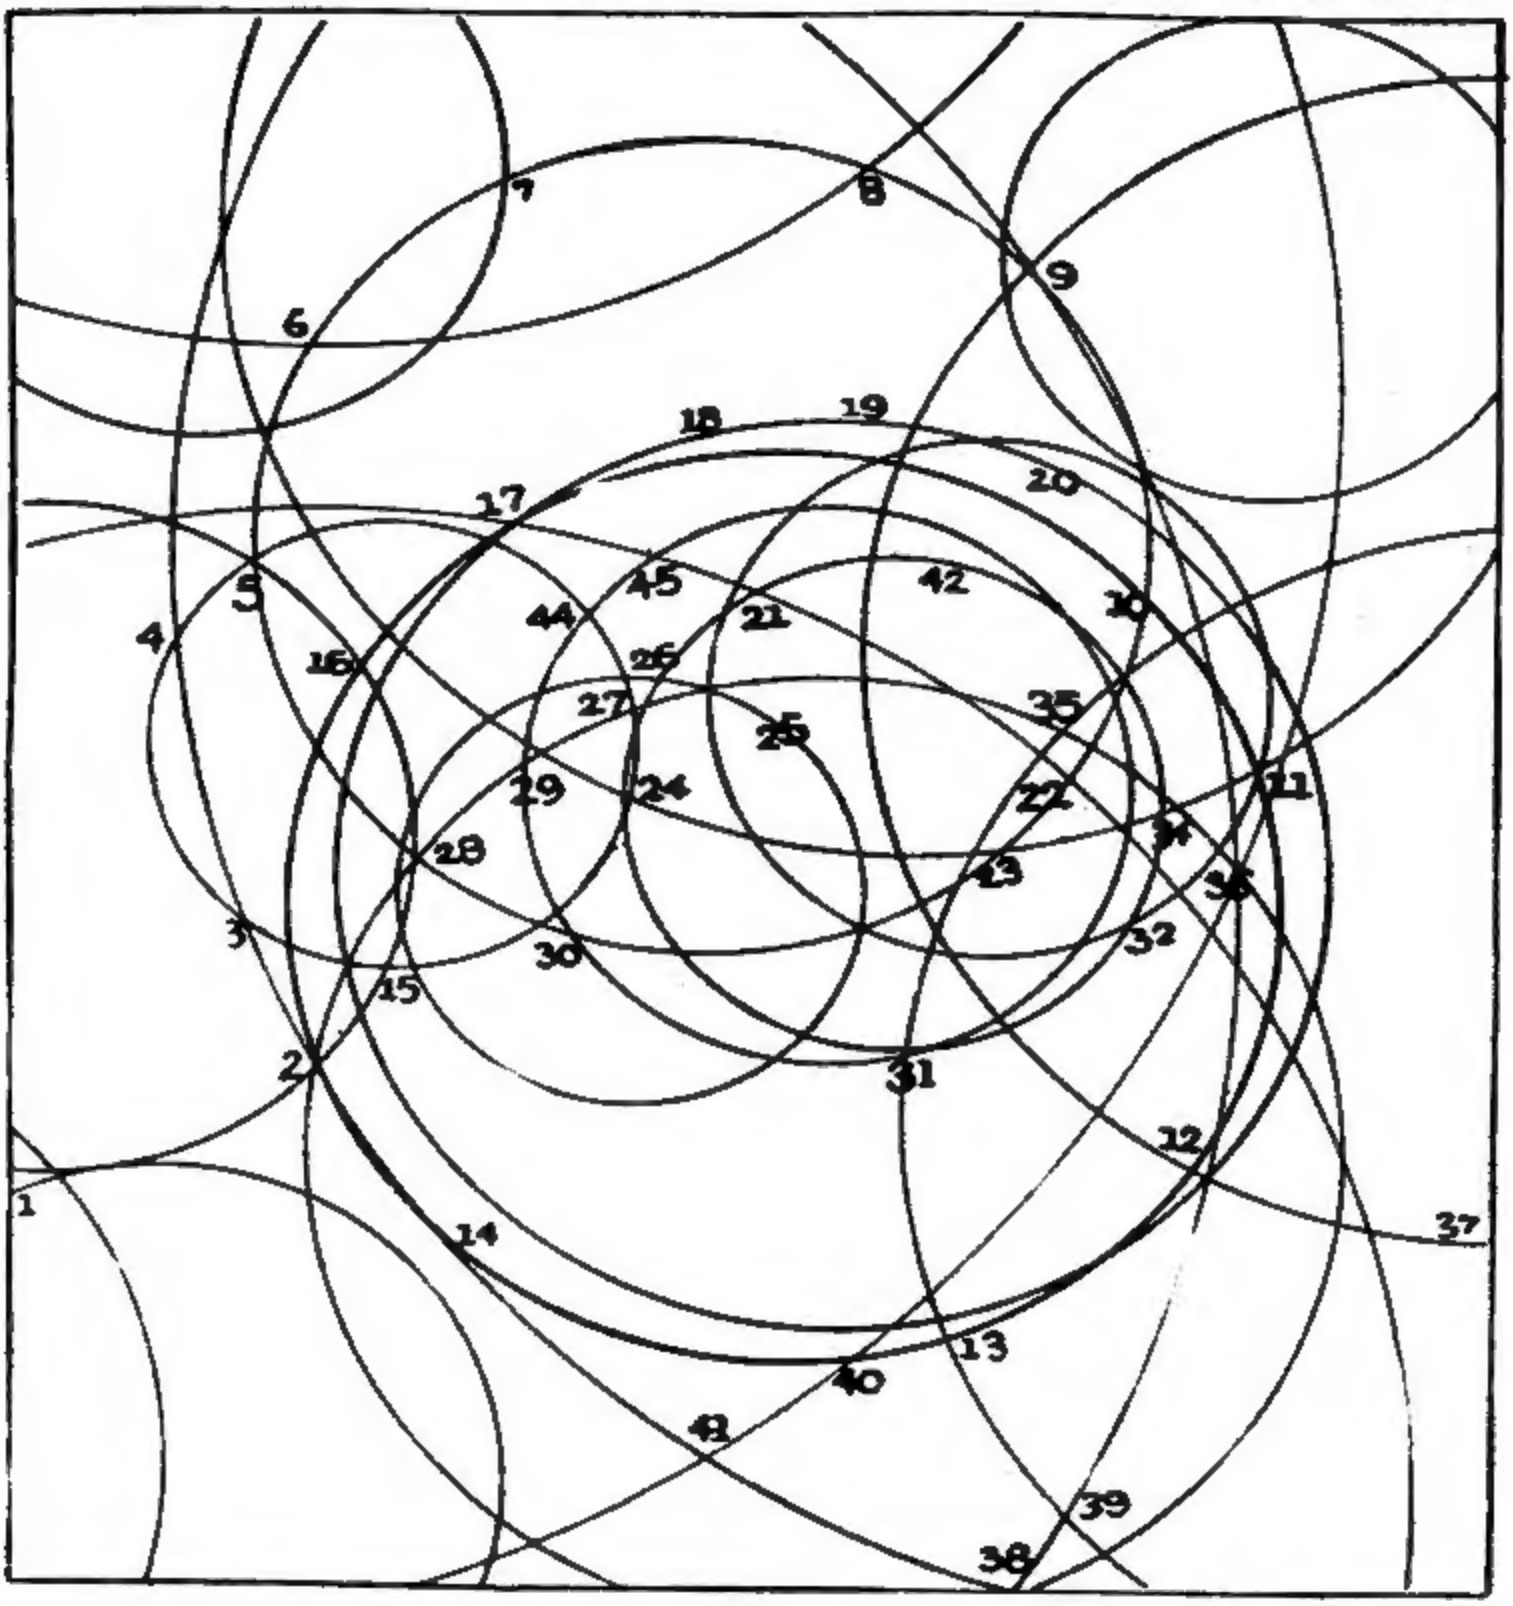
And this is how it will be worked. You see the numbers on the lines. When you take your pencil and draw lines between certain of these numbers the picture finally appears. However, the picture will be hard to make out if you draw it over the lines and leave it go at that.

This is the way to get a better picture. Take an old piece of newspaper, as there will still be enough ink on it to act as a carbon paper, place it on a piece of plain white paper. Then place are radiotoon on top of that and pin it down so that it will not move.

Have all this done before Uncle Kay-Bee comes on the air and then, instead of a bedtime story, he will tell you just what numbers to draw lines through and between. When the lines have all been finished then you will lift the radiotoon and and the other piece of paper, and there you will find your picture. If it is not very bright you can follow the lines already there again and make the picture stand out.

If you follow this very closely you will be able to draw these pictures without the radiotoon after while. It is the idea of Ralph Reichhold, one of THE PRESS artists, and both he and Uncle Kay-Bee trust you will have a good time drawing the picture tomorrow evening.

Reichhold Radiotoon On Radio for Children



THIS is the second radiotoon "Kiddies," for you to cut out and save till tomorrow, when Uncle Kay Bee will tell you how to get this week's picture out of the funny lines pictured above.

As you want the picture on a piece of white paper where you can see it better, you can take a piece of carbon paper, or a piece of newspaper will do the trick, place it on the white paper and then put the radiotoon on top of that. That will draw the lines on the white paper as you follow the numbers on the radiotoon.

Now Ralph Reichold, THE PRESS artist who drew the radiotoon, and Uncle Kay Bee are interested in how you make out with the picture, so after you have it finished, either send in a copy of the picture or a letter to them telling them how you made the picture.
